

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. The number of calls I received prior to Indiana's law was a tremendous nuisance and I consider telemarketing calls an invasion of my privacy. In my view telemarketing is a very ineffective way of marketing. I would NEVER purchase anything as a result of receiving a call from a telemarketer. The passage of the Indiana law has greatly improved the quality of our home life.